The Principality of Andorra is a small state in the Pyrenees, which is believed to be a true tax haven, especially compared to neighbouring Spain and France. The legend is as close to reality as it can be. Thus, the first €24,000 of the income is tax-free, and the rest is charged up to 10%. The.

With low personal and corporate tax rates, no wealth or inheritance taxes, and a modest value-added tax (called IGI), the Principality is an appealing destination for entrepreneurs, high-net-worth individuals and retirees. In today's article we explore the main taxes that exist in the Principality.

In Andorra there is no direct tax on business profits, individual income tax or capital income tax. Andorra tax system is based on indirect taxation. The only tax on companies as of now are business license fees, social security contributions to Andorran Social Security Fund (CASS), and property.

Andorra's tax system is renowned for its simplicity and low rates, making it an attractive destination for individuals and businesses seeking a favorable fiscal environment. The country offers competitive personal income and corporate taxes. Additionally, Andorra does not impose taxes on wealth.

Andorra is a true tax haven within Europe, offering very low tax rates for both corporations and individuals. Corporate tax is levied at a rate of 10% on most activities, although there are benefits that can reduce it to 2%. For residents, income tax ranges from 0% to 10%, well below that of most.

Andorra is a small European country with an outsized reputation for favourable tax rates. The highlights include a low value-added tax, no sales tax, and a low personal income tax, among others. The advantages also extend to the Andorra corporate tax rate. As well as being lower than those in.
